September Commentary

Your Fund returned -3.8% during the month compared to -1.9% for the FTSE All-Share Index TR.

Bond yields rose sharply in September and the US Federal Reserve raised interest rates for the first time since 2023. Both were a response to strong US growth and higher inflation, linked to energy prices. Investors are also wary of government spending and fiscal deficits across the western world. Bond market weakness impacted equities, particularly those perceived to have longer duration cash flows. Energy, where the Fund has no exposure, outperformed in the month, given the ongoing conflict and supply disruptions in the Middle East.

The Fund's underperformance was driven by its digital and data holdings, which gave back their August gains. Higher yields were one factor. The other was the launch of Meta's Muse, a personal AI agent that can book travel, make purchases and send emails on a user's behalf. Muse quickly became the top free app on the US App Store. The market responded with a blanket sell-off in businesses seen as exposed to AI disruption, including RELX, LSEG, Sage, Experian and Auto Trader.

Experian was the largest detractor of these, falling 19% on concerns about both AI disruption and the impact of higher rates on credit demand. Having invested in Experian for well over a decade, we believe the business is less exposed to higher rates than the share price suggests. We also feel that as AI agents increasingly transact with one another, Experian could see higher volumes for its credit data. Our investment case remains intact.

The flip side to falling share prices is that valuations have improved across the Fund. We added to National Grid, whose shares have fallen as bond yields have risen. Having reduced the holding earlier in the year, we see the valuation as attractive once more on a dividend yield above 4.5%. The purchase was funded by selling Rotork, following its takeover approach from ABB.
