Trojan Fund (Ireland)

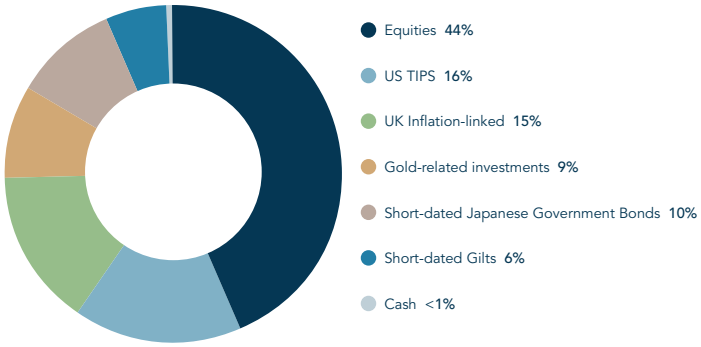

The Fund seeks to achieve growth in capital, ahead of inflation (UK Consumer Price Index), over the longer term (5 to 7 years). The Fund employs a long-term, long-only approach and has the flexibility to invest across a broad range of asset classes, most commonly a combination of high-quality developed market equities, developed market government bonds, gold-related investments and cash.

September Commentary

Your Fund (O Acc GBP) returned -1.7% during the month.

Gold retraced its gains of the summer whilst the Fund's equities were modestly negative. Higher inflation expectations and tighter monetary policy have been the proximate causes. At the time of writing, the yield on the 10-year US Treasury is 5.3%, up from 4.2% at the start of this year and 4.8% at the start of September. Equity markets are starting to take note of the higher cost of capital; we are cautiously positioned with c. 40% in stocks today. One area of the market seemingly still impervious to the rise in yields is semiconductor companies and AI-related hardware. Given that AI capital expenditure is increasingly reliant on debt markets, we question how long higher yields can persist without negatively impacting the build-out.

Conscious that equities and bonds may fall together, we have deliberately kept the Fund's bond duration short. At the start of September, the 30% index-linked bond exposure had a duration of 2.5 years. This has delivered a modestly positive contribution to performance year-to-date. The 16% of the Fund in short-dated nominal bonds has a duration of less than a year and has also been positive. Meanwhile, the year-to-date total return from a 30-year US Treasury is -8%. We added modestly to the duration of the mandate's index-linked exposure towards the end of the month, taking it to c.3.5 years. There remains scant premium for inflation protection and with inflation of less than 2.5% priced in for the next few years, we were able to buy a 7-year index-linked bond (our longest dated security) on a real yield of nearly 3%.

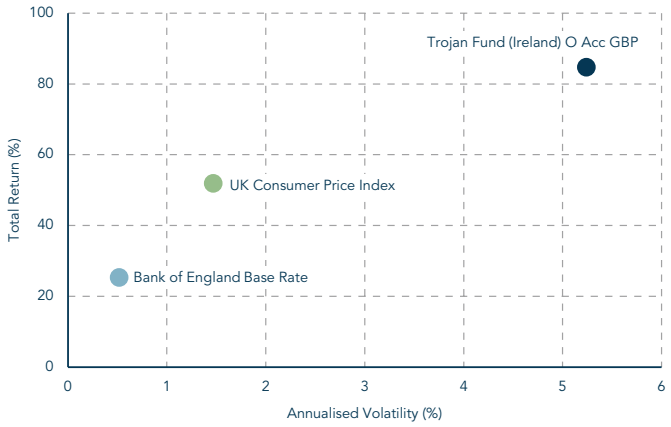

We have added modestly to stocks, including a new holding in the water infrastructure company Xylem. Xylem manufactures pumps, treatment systems, and water measurement systems for utilities, industrial plants and buildings. Although consistently growing its earnings double-digit, its shares have de-rated from over 45x earnings in 2021 to 16x today. Declining interest in ESG-related companies combined with the rise in bond yields have driven much of this. We believe that prospective returns from here are attractive.

Important Information

Please refer to Troy's Glossary of Investment terms here. Fund performance data provided is calculated net of fees with income reinvested unless stated otherwise. All performance and income data is in relation to the stated share class, performance of other share classes may differ. Past performance is not a guide to future performance. Overseas investments may be affected by movements in currency exchange rates. The value of an investment and any income from it may fall as well as rise and investors may get back less than they invested. The historic dividend yield reflects distributions declared over the past twelve months as a percentage of the fund's price, as at the date shown. The yield is not guaranteed and will fluctuate. It does not include any preliminary charge and investors may be subject to tax on their distributions. The UK Consumer Prices Index (CPI) is a target benchmark for the fund as the Fund aims to achieve a return (the money made or lost on an investment) that is above the rate of inflation, reference to other benchmarks are for comparative purposes only. Tax legislation and the levels of relief from taxation can change at any time. Any change in the tax status of a Fund or in tax legislation could affect the value of the investments held by the Fund or its ability to provide returns to its investors. The tax treatment of an investment, and any dividends received, will depend on the individual circumstances of the investor and may be subject to change in the future. There is no guarantee that the objective of the investments will be met. The Fund may use currency forward derivatives for the purpose of efficient portfolio management. The UK CPI figures shown are a combination of the actual rate of CPI, as calculated by the Office of National Statistics, and estimates for the previous month. This is a marketing communication. Information on the risks of an investment in the fund can be found in the Prospectus.
