February Commentary

Your Fund (O Acc GBP) returned +1.3% during the month.

In February, we attended the Consumer Analyst Group of New York (CAGNY) conference, hearing over 30 consumer staples companies pitch their investment cases. Recent years have been challenging for staples. Cyclical factors - including post-pandemic normalisation and cost inflation - explain much of the pressure, but structural change is also apparent. Weight-loss drugs and health & wellness were recurring themes at CAGNY. With around 12% of US adults reporting use of GLP-1 drugs, packaged food companies are seeing tangible volume pressure. Management teams are walking a difficult tightrope: reformulating portfolios, coping with weak or negative volumes, and managing elevated cost bases.

A tough operating environment tends to expose a sector's relative strengths and weaknesses, making category positioning and management quality even more important. We have greater confidence in the demand drivers behind personal care, beauty and wellbeing categories, reflected in portfolio holdings such as Unilever and L'Oréal. Both management teams delivered confident presentations and continue to demonstrate more resilient growth than many peers.

In a month where markets were preoccupied with AI and technological disruption, staples too emphasised the pace of change. Unilever spoke in detail about the dramatic change in modern product marketing. 'Big bang' broad campaigns like national TV spots are increasingly less important. Unilever today works with an "army" of c.300,000 influencers across social media channels. Marketing cycles are dramatically shorter - content may only remain relevant for days - with rapid iteration and data-driven adjustments to messaging, scripts and featured products occurring in near real time. We think large staples incumbents, with vast consumer datasets and learnings, have strong advantages in this world.

A consistent and more cautionary message across CAGNY was that the consumer, especially in the US, is struggling. Affordability pressures are evident even in everyday products, and some food and beverage companies are now cutting prices. We are mindful that consumer spending is the bedrock of the US economy, accounting for as much as 70% of GDP.

While February seemed to be all about AI, March has seen attention shift to the dramatic developments in the Middle East. The market environment feels distinctly febrile, and we remain cautiously positioned.

Important Information

Please refer to Troy's Glossary of Investment terms here. Fund performance data provided is calculated net of fees with income reinvested unless stated otherwise. All performance and income data is in relation to the stated share class, performance of other share classes may differ. Past performance is not a guide to future performance. Overseas investments may be affected by movements in currency exchange rates. The value of an investment and any income from it may fall as well as rise and investors may get back less than they invested. The historic dividend yield reflects distributions declared over the past twelve months as a percentage of the fund's price, as at the date shown. The yield is not guaranteed and will fluctuate. It does not include any preliminary charge and investors may be subject to tax on their distributions. The UK Retail Prices Index (RPI) is a target benchmark for the fund as the Fund aims to achieve a return (the money made or lost on an investment) that is above the rate of inflation, reference to other benchmarks are for comparative purposes only. Tax legislation and the levels of relief from taxation can change at any time. Any change in the tax status of a Fund or in tax legislation could affect the value of the investments held by the Fund or its ability to provide returns to its investors. The tax treatment of an investment, and any dividends received, will depend on the individual circumstances of the investor and may be subject to change in the future. There is no guarantee that the objective of the investments will be met. The Fund may use currency forward derivatives for the purpose of efficient portfolio management. The UK RPI figures shown are a combination of the actual rate of RPI, as calculated by the Office of National Statistics, and estimates for the previous month. This is a marketing communication. Information on the risks of an investment in the fund can be found in the Prospectus.
