

Trojan Exclusions Fund

The investment objective of the Trojan Exclusions Fund is to provide capital growth (net of fees), ahead of inflation (UK Retail Price Index), over the longer term (5 to 7 years). Its investment policy is to invest across a broad range of asset classes. Whilst asset allocation will vary, in general, the investment universe will comprise high-quality, developed market equities, developed market government bonds, gold related investments, cash and money market instruments (such as treasury bills). The portfolio will be constructed with input from both top-down analysis (looking at an economy as a whole) and bottom-up analysis (study of individual securities). The Fund will invest in accordance with the parameters of its Ethical Exclusion Criteria.

June Commentary

Your Fund (X Acc GBP) returned -0.5% during the month.

Equities, currency and gold (in sterling terms) all provided modestly negative contributions to the Fund in June. The equity market rally suggests that investors view the bombing of Iran, Trump's tariffs and pressure on the Fed's independence as manageable threats to the economy and inflation. Several consumer staples businesses struggled in the month as investors preferred the shares of more economically sensitive companies. The dollar also continued its weakness against sterling, impacting the gold holding and the reduced net dollar exposure. After a very strong period of performance, the gold price is consolidating. We are not surprised to see this having taken material gains over the last 9 months. We expect the dollar may not be the safe haven it has been in the past as trust in the US as a destination for international capital continues to be eroded.

The strong recovery in equity markets is a reminder on why transposing geopolitical predictions onto financial markets is challenging. If an investor had perfect foresight and predicted Israel and the US bombing Iran, they may have predicted higher oil prices, or lower equity valuations to reflect higher risk premia. Neither of these things happened for more than a few days as markets were happy to look through the events. We avoid pointing the portfolio in a single direction for this reason. Instead, we strive to create a portfolio that can protect and grow capital in all environments over the long term.
