Trojan Ethical Fund

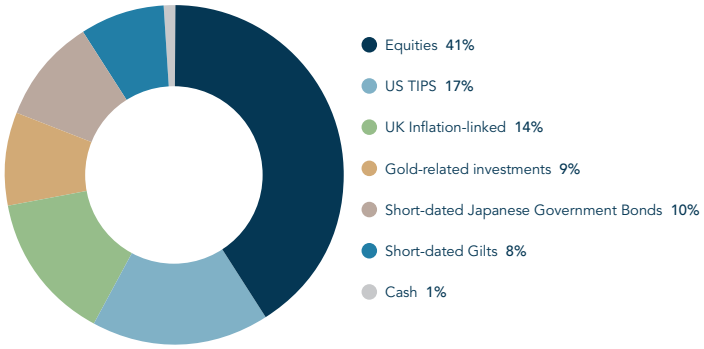

The investment objective of the Trojan Ethical Fund is to provide capital growth (net of fees), ahead of inflation (UK Consumer Price Index), over the longer term (5 to 7 years). Its investment policy is to invest across a broad range of asset classes. Whilst asset allocation will vary, in general, the investment universe will comprise high-quality, developed market equities, developed market government bonds, gold-related investments, cash and money market instruments (such as treasury bills). The Fund will invest in accordance with the parameters of its Ethical Exclusion Criteria.

October Commentary

Your Fund returned +2.1% during the month compared to +1.1% for the FTSE All-Share Index TR.

In our latest Investment Report No.90, we look beyond the noise surrounding the AI investment boom to consider two longer-term themes: the continuing bear market in bonds and the increasingly neglected merits of diversification.

The benefits of diversification have been conveniently forgotten, in our opinion. A portfolio seeking to protect and grow capital is not simply a diluted equity portfolio. Its purpose is to combine risk-seeking assets with genuinely diversifying exposures so that no single idea, sector, style or macroeconomic outcome dominates or determines the investor's outcome. If you were constructing a well-diversified portfolio today, you would not be as concentrated as the global stock market index. The index is dominated by an ever-decreasing number of larger companies, exaggerated further by the recent IPO of SpaceX and imminent listing of Anthropic. Our aim is to build a portfolio that can withstand different investment outcomes. Resilience is currently underappreciated, but we are convinced that will not last forever.

During October we added to the Fund's holding in gold bullion. It has been five years since we made a material addition to the yellow metal. In January 2026, during the spike to over $5,000/oz., we reduced the weighting by 4%, but following falls in the price to ~$4,000/oz., we believe it is a reasonable time to begin to add. The ongoing debasement of currencies is still with us and, while interest rates have been raised by the Federal Reserve, we see little prospect of a sustained return to positive real interest rates and the 'sound money'[1] that might call time on gold's bull market. Speaking at an FT conference during the month Charlotte Yonge, co-manager of this strategy, described gold as the ideal "hedge" against the worsening "state of government finances", pointing to ballooning US government debt and expectations that central banks would print more money "next time we go into a recession". As she observed, "Gold can't be printed in that same way". For us, there remain plenty of reasons to own a currency that cannot be printed, and gold continues to provide essential portfolio insurance and diversification which we cannot find elsewhere.

Important Information

Please refer to Troy's Glossary of Investment terms here. Fund performance data provided is calculated net of fees with income reinvested unless stated otherwise. All performance and income data is in relation to the stated share class, performance of other share classes may differ. Past performance is not a guide to future performance. Overseas investments may be affected by movements in currency exchange rates. The value of an investment and any income from it may fall as well as rise and investors may get back less than they invested. The historic yield reflects distributions declared over the past twelve months as a percentage of the fund's price, as at the date shown. It does not include any preliminary charge and investors may be subject to tax on their distributions. The UK Consumer Price Index (CPI) is a target benchmark for the fund as the Fund aims to achieve a return (the money made or lost on an investment) that is above the rate of inflation, reference to other benchmarks are for comparative purposes only. Tax legislation and the levels of relief from taxation can change at any time. Any change in the tax status of a Fund or in tax legislation could affect the value of the investments held by the Fund or its ability to provide returns to its investors. The tax treatment of an investment, and any dividends received, will depend on the individual circumstances of the investor and may be subject to change in the future. The yield is not guaranteed and will fluctuate. Any objective will be treated as a target only and should not be considered as an assurance or guarantee of performance of the Fund or any part of it. The Fund may use currency forward derivatives for the purpose of efficient portfolio management. The UK CPI figures shown are a combination of the actual rate of CPI, as calculated by the Office of National Statistics, and estimates for the previous month. Information on the risks of an investment in the fund can be found in the Prospectus.
