October Commentary

Your Fund returned +7.1% during the month compared to -1.6% for the MSCI World Index NR GBP.

This month saw a reversal of the key trend which has been driving equity, and increasingly debt, markets around the world. While the headline index declined only slightly the rotation under the surface was notable. Having experienced a similar market dynamic in July, we once again saw what happens when doubts arise around the scale of capital being deployed into the AI infrastructure build out. Owing to the dominance of the AI theme in markets, the economy and consumption via the wealth effect, its reversal is striking.

Several company specific announcements fuelled the decline in share prices. Alphabet missed earnings and revenue forecasts as AI spending reduced free cashflow and warned of a significant rise in capex in 2027. Meta raised the low end of its capex forecast and created a new non-voting share class to help fund AI spending. Amazon and Intel earnings then triggered further cashflow worries on the final day of the month. It was also reported that Anthropic investors were discussing a lower IPO valuation after its revenue growth slowed. In Asia, China's CXMT announced progress on advanced memory chips, adding competitive pressure. The combination of the heavy investments, for which the market is growing tired, together with gathering Chinese competition – our key concerns – is evident in this news flow.

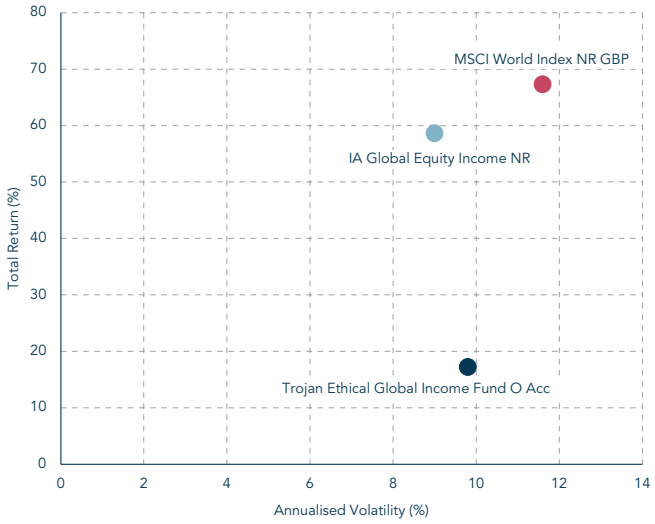

Hence the worst performing sectors were Information Technology, Communication Services (which includes companies such as Meta and Alphabet) and Industrials whereas Energy (which is responding on an idiosyncratic basis to events in Iran), Consumer Staples and Healthcare were strong. The Philadelphia Semiconductor Index declined by 15.3% (in USD). This clearly benefitted the performance of the fund. The top performers in the portfolio included Experian (+21.1%), RELX (+19.8%), CTS Eventim (+19.3%), Universal Music Group (+18.7%) and Rentokil (+17.7%).

It is too early to say if this is simply a market wobble or a more serious turning point. But the lopsided nature of the market and the value of diversification have been demonstrated by recent events.
