October Commentary

Your Fund returned +1.2% during the month compared to +2.3% for the MSCI World Index (NR) GBP.

We have established a new investment in Rentokil Initial. Some will remember this business, managed by Clive Thompson in the 1980s and 1990s, as it became a conglomerate via acquisition earning Mr Thompson the nickname "Mr 20%" - expected earnings per share growth – until it ended badly. The shares fell by 92% between 1998 to 2009.

Today it is a much better business. Under Andy Ransom the company is focussed on commercial and residential pest control, where it has become the global leader as well as the largest player in the lucrative US market. It also has smaller businesses engaged in facilities management providing washroom hygiene equipment and workwear.

Pest control is an inherently attractive industry (at least from an investment standpoint) given the resilient, repeat, non-discretionary nature of spending in this category, often mandated by regulation, leading to high recurring revenue and decent growth. Further, per capita pest control spend increases as countries develop. A warming planet may further bolster demand.

The industry remains fragmented offering attractive bolt-on acquisition¹ potential.

Companies in the sector also enjoy durable competitive advantages. Scale and local density of operations lead to a superior cost and productivity as well as brand equity.

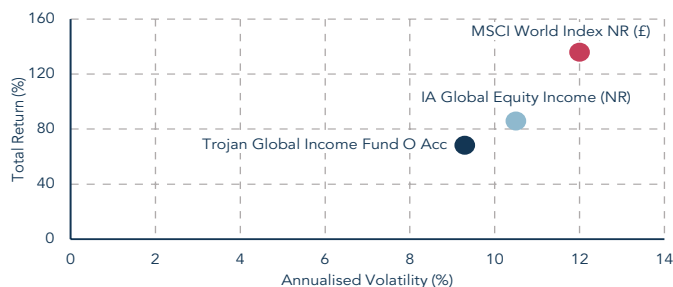

The second largest player in the US, Rollins (which admittedly is purely focussed on pest control in one geography), enjoys a P/E multiple of 43x. Conversely Rentokil trades on a much more conservative c. 17x 2024 EPS with a 2.3% dividend yield. So why such a big discount?

Rentokil has temporarily stumbled following the acquisition of the US pest business called Terminix. At Troy we are wary of large corporate deals, and this was no exception leading us to refrain from investing while the deal progressed and the valuation of the shares declined. Herein lies the opportunity. Although we may have a few more bumpy quarters we are being given the opportunity to establish an investment in a high-quality global asset at a tantalizing valuation.

¹Bolt-on acquisition refers to the acquisition of smaller companies, usually in the same line of business, that presents strategic value.
